CURVED POUF

Aniline leather is the most natural looking leather, the unique surface characteristics of the animal hide remains visible. Hence, a degree of natural marks and shade variation is to be expected.

Aniline leather has a natural, warm and soft grip and the color of the leather will change over time and develop a beautiful patina over time. However, leather is very sensitive, and stains will become visible if not cleaned off immediately.

Clean the leather using a hard-wrung cloth and make sure not to leave any water on the leather. You can impregnate the leather with nubuck leather/textile impregnation spray. We suggest that you firstly apply impregnation on a smaller and less visible part of the aniline leather in order to ensure the product is safe to use and does not discolour the surface of the leather. Please follow the instruction label of the impregnation used carefully and consult a professional before starting if needed.
